Before the opening professions traders predicted that there would be pronounced advance, but the public expected a decline because of the action of the directors in cutting the dividend yes terday. The stock was off about 7-8 of a point in the early trading, but this was thought to be due to the efforts of short interests to hold the price down long enough to allow them to get out. Wall street is pleased at the cutting of the dividend. It is taken to indicate that the feud in the corporation between the Morgan and Rockefeller interests has been settled and that a pronounce advance in the cash surplus, sure to follow a reduction of dividends, will
